

Jeren'Zho of house Panzen from the City of Venjah'Goh-Raz was a student in the Araj Quellar.

A student of both mind and blade, with a future that was certain to include graduation and elevation to the highest tiers of his house and colleagues of battle.

Background:

Unfortunately his curiosity got the better of him, and he followed the rumour of an old ritual which would invoke the light of the surface world deep within the underdark. Following a compelling calling, he eventually found a tome with the ritual inscribed and in the darkest of forgotten corners did he utter its verses.

Unfortunately, as the daylight spell was cast its beams were apparent from a great distance. And Jarehn-Zho was found out. He was shortly exiled, and pursued to an inch of life through the passages of the underdark. However that light had awakened something deep within him, and he would not let his own speak fade.

Current:

He now ventures on the surface world meeting new people, and bringing the divine light to those in plight or injury. While still skilled with the blade and learned in the arts of combat magic, he continues to investigate new sources of illuminating and healing magics.